Pair of Women's Shoes

Medium

Silk satin, linen, leather

Description

A pair of woman's shoes, known as slippers, constructed of ivory silk satin uppers, with a shaped heeless narrow foot ending in a slightly squared toe. A thin brown leather sole is sewn with very fine seams to the uppers, and has delicately stamped motifs including a large floral/foliate spray and smaller floral blossoms. The edges of the soles are edged with a narrow diamond chain border lightly stamped into the leather. The interior of the slippers are lined with lightweight ivory linen, and a linen covered insole. The shoes include an inner side lacing closure, with tiny hand-sewn eyelets along both edges. The left slipper retains its silk satin tongue, while the right slipper does not. Both slippers retain their narrow woven silk flat laces, tipped by long delicate brass aiglets. The slippers are ankle height.
