

Artificial Bridal Wreath

Medium

Wire, wax, silk, paper, velvet

Description

A wreath of artificial orange blossoms, comprised of a thin wire armature coated with bright green wax, with portions of wire separated from the main bundle to create small stems. Orange blossoms and buds are glued or otherwise attached to the thin wire strands, constructed of white or off-white pressed silk and paper. The wreath entered the collection in a bright green paddle-shaped lidded cardboard box with a partial label glued to the lid top. The box is most likely from another purchase, possibly a small hand fan based upon the box's unusual shape.
