Silk taffeta, cotton, lace, silk fringe, linen

Description

A woman's two piece gown of light brown and off-white mottled ground interspersed with bunches of red and green floral sprays. The bodice is fashioned with a high, round neckline, dropped shoulder seams, double bell sleeves, a front closure, and a pointed center front and back hem. Small circular eyelets run down the proper right side, allowing the wearer to change the buttons at will. The gown is lined with linen and glazed of-white cotton and includes boning channels on front and back. The bodice also includes an attached bertha or capelet. Capelet and sleeves are trimmed with long golden brown silk fringe. The skirt is constructed with a sturdy linen waistband, cartridge pleated skirt, full cotton lining, and back closure with single back button and hand-sewn eyelet. The skirt hem is faced with sturdy linen and narrow cotton binding tape. The pearl buttons are modern replacements.
