Description

Depiction of a large barn interior in tones of brown, gray and tan. Two large overhead joists attach to posts with knee braces. A horizontal wall five boards high defines the foreground, which is wood plank flooring. The end wall of the barn has vertical studs, to which horizontal siding is attached. Hay is stacked in the loft on the left, with more on the ground floor to the right. A square frame in the distance that extends from the ground floor to the top of the loft provides access for farm hands when the barn is full of hay. The speckles on the ground floor planks may represent pigeon droppings.
